Reckord House
162 Williams Street
Bel Air
Private

Queen Anne style houses were immensely popular with Bel Air's elite in the late 19th century. This example has a severely balanced facade and unusual Eastlake decoration on the projecting gable of the front porch. An elegant Eastlake mantel on the hall fireplace is also worthy of note. John H. Reckord built the house in Richardson's Addition in 1886, the same year Henry Record and Sons built the Reckord Mill on Rock Spring Avenue near the railroad tracks. General Milton A. Reckord, for many years Adjutant of the Maryland National Guard, was reared here. The house remained in the Reckord family until 1977.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This two and a half story Victorian house is at 162 Williams Street in the Town of Bel Air, Harford County, Maryland. The house is aluminum sided and has a steep gable roof. It is sharply divided into three bays with the two end bays projecting beyond the middle bay. The projecting bays have their own sharply raked gables each with a 2/2 window. Pairs of windows occupy the three bays of the second story. The front porch has a shed roof carried on turned posts and a projecting gable with Eastlake decoration in the middle half of each side bay has been enclosed with a single, modern 1/1 window in the middle. There is a balustrade with turned balusters.

The south elevation has a hexagonal two story bay window with its own overhanging gable on top in the west bay. The north elevation has a wider hexagonal two story bay window in the middle bay. From the roof of this bay window springs a small gabled dormer with a Queen Anne over two window in it. A pyramid roofed single bay porch on turned posts shelters a door between the western two bays of this elevation.

The rear (west) elevation shows a gable roofed ell with irregularly placed windows but about 2 bays wide. Another porch occupies the space between the ell and the main block.

Three large Queen Anne chimneys animate the roof line, two in the ridge of the main block (on either side of the central hall) and one inside end chimney in the middle of the west elevation of the ell.

The main entrance is in the middle bay of the front (east) elevation: a large single pane transom and two pane window lights surrounding large double doors with 1 pane over 1 panel with the edges bevelled.

The house is now apartments and only the large central hall was available for inspection. The woodwork is molded with "door bell" corner blocks. The entrances to the rooms off the hall consist of huge 6 panel double sliding doors. An Eastlake mantel is in the north wall of the hall west of the sliding doors. It has a mirrored overmantel with turned decorations and a green tile surround (square opening) and hearth.

The staircase is at the west end of the hall, a closed-string double dog-leg affair with turned balusters and huge turned newels with block and canon ball finials.

The scale of the house is impressive for Bel Air. One could hold a dance in the hall, and doubtless they did.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This large Victorian house is noteworthy both for its size, its Eastlake decoration on the front porch gable, and the Eastlake mentel in the hall. The aluminum siding covers any other decoration there may have been.

The house was built in 1886 by John H. Reckord on land in Richardson's Addition he bought from E. Hall Richardson (56/345). This was probably the first house on Williams Street. Reckord built the mill on Main Street the same year. It stayed in the Reckord family until 1977. John Reckord conveyed it to his wife in 1889 (63/481). In 1935 she conveyed it to her son Milton A. Reckord (237/74). At the time General Reckord was head of the Maryland National Guard. He died in 1975 after a career of 60 years service to the State of Maryland. In 1977 his trustees sold it to the present owner, David M. Cartzendafner. It is divided into apartments.
